

20 questions workbook

FROM THESTORYOFTELLING.COM

the STORY of TELLING

Why start with the questions?

We've become really good at looking for answers. So good in fact, that we get close to asking a billion questions a day in Google search.

Yet as leaders, busy business owners and idea creators, we struggle to find time to ask really important questions of ourselves. The best ideas, products, services and movements are launched as a result of understanding the reasons why they need to exist and why people should care that they do.

Here then, are questions worth taking the time to answer before launching your idea.

Why am I doing this?

BRAINSTORMING

2

Why am I the person to do it?

BRAINSTORMING

Why is now the time to start?

BRAINSTORMING

What problem am I solving?

BRAINSTORMING

Who is it for?

BRAINSTORMING

Why will they care?

BRAINSTORMING

What's my greatest strength?

BRAINSTORMING

What weakness might get in the way if I don't address it?

BRAINSTORMING

What does success look like, today, this year, next and five years from now?

BRAINSTORMING

What do I value?

BRAINSTORMING

What promises do I want to make and keep?

BRAINSTORMING

A series of horizontal lines for writing answers to the main question.

What's my difference?

BRAINSTORMING

Brainstorming area with a lightbulb icon.

Lined area for brainstorming notes.